THAT HOODOO EATCHET.

There is little doubt that it was the inof the policemen in regard to the hatchet it must be remembered that the prosecution insists that with that weapon Lizzie Borden murdered first her stepmother and next her father. The theory of the government is that after the morder the bloodstains on the blade had been rubbed with coarse ashes, and been broken off and burned by the

The ashes alleged to have been found in the stove are held to have been the result of this burning. No other weapon whatever has been discovered with which the killing could have been done. and it was necessary to Ind the weapon, for how could Lizzie have so speedily and so completely disposed of it?

When ex-Gov. Robinson made the witnesses who had found the hatchet contradict each other and tangle themselves up in a network of lying, and when at last he dragged from one witness fact that the handle was not missing at all, but was found with the very men who had sworn it was misssensation and a shock ran through the court-room. It not only became clear that this important part of the government's case had hopeless ly fallen to pieces, but the belief force itself on many minds that the false story of the disappearance and alleged burning of the handle to hide the tellburning of the handle to hide the tell-tale blood-stains was designed to place a rope round the prisoner's neck.

"However, if the passenger agents make a one-way rate recommendation, it will be indorsed by the executive officers and put into operation."

The great majority of the passenger agents are decidedly in favor of a one-way rate, and they all know that the present rate, if allowed te continue, will prevent many from going to the Fair.

By the Pennsylvania and New York Central the standard one-way rate to Chicago is $20, and the Erie, West Shore, Baitimore and Ohio and Lehigh Valley rate ranges from $1 to $2 less.

Under the present condition of affairs there is a 20 per cent, reduction on trains occupying more than thirty-two hours on the journey. That this rate is far from popular and that better inducements will have to be offered to the public is attested by the fact that much of the elaborate preparation for nandling expected crowds by the lines out of this city has already been crowned with fallure.
